Report by the Chairman and Managing Director

For more than a quarter of a century, our sole purpose has been to grow the long-term investments of our investors.

For more than a quarter of a century our sole purpose has been to grow the long-term investments of our investors. Our value proposition is quite simple: to deliver competitive real (after inflation) returns over multiple decades, which will ultimately contribute to a more financially secure future for our clients. Our long-term track record across our fund range is testament to delivering on this proposition over time.

The past year has, however, been a challenging one for the South African economy, the markets and investors alike. The very weak local economy, combined with pressure on emerging markets, weighed on the local equity market, with the FTSE/JSE All Share Index producing a disappointing return of 3.3% for the 12 months to end-September 2018. Emerging markets, as measured by the MSCI Emerging Markets Index gained 3.6% (in rands), but lost 0.8% (in US dollars). It is, therefore, not surprising that households continued to lack the confidence to commit meaningful new money to unit trust funds.

Coupled with these cyclical challenges, the share prices of a number of our equity holdings declined during the period under review, resulting in disappointing short-term returns across our equity-focused portfolios. While these returns were well below our own expectations as well as those of our clients, we are working hard to rectify this, as our Chief Investment Officer explains in his report on → pages 5 to 6.

A notable contributor to underperformance was the governance failure at Steinhoff and the subsequent collapse of the share. As it is unlikely that there will be any equity value remaining in the company once it repays its creditors and settles legal claims, we decided to exit our position across our fund range. Additionally, we are participating in the class action suit being brought against the company by Amsterdam-based law firm BarentsKrats. We anticipate that this will be a lengthy process and will continue to provide updates as the case progresses.

Long-term performance still on track

Encouragingly, as is clear from the table overleaf, the long-term performance across our fund range remains excellent, with our domestic and international flagship funds reflecting consistent first-quartile rankings in their respective Morningstar categories since inception. While the current cycle is a particularly challenging one, valuation remains our beacon in turbulent times. We remain committed to our proven investment philosophy and continue to invest in a disciplined manner, ensuring that we construct diversified portfolios in which the outcomes are not dependent on a single idea or holding. Further, our risk management framework ensures that we limit position sizes to appropriate levels, given the risk budgets applicable to specific funds.

Enhancing our value proposition

Placing our clients first remains at the centre of everything that we do, and as a result we continue to ensure that our actions are aligned with their needs.

Following our comprehensive fee review in 2015, which has already added significant value to our clients' portfolios, we introduced meaningful fee cuts across our international and lower-risk funds. The change allows for a simplified fee structure across our flagship multi-asset funds, which now all charge the same flat fee – regardless of risk budget or geographical profile.

FEES ALIGNED WITH CLIENTS' INTERESTS

BASE FEE

Set significantly below typical fixed-fee rates

PERFORMANCE FEE

Only charged when we deliver outperformance of an investable index

CREDITED WITH A DISCOUNT

if we underperform appropriate benchmarks over a five-year period until outperformance resumes

As part of the 2015 review, we introduced a pioneering approach to the fee structures of our performance-fee charging funds. In the event that we underperform the respective fund benchmarks over a rolling five-year period¹, as is currently the case in certain equity-biased portfolios, the affected funds are credited with a fee discount until outperformance resumes. The following funds with performance-linked fee structures are currently discounting fees:

- ▶ Coronation Top 20
- ▶ Coronation Equity
- ▶ Coronation Market Plus
- ▶ Coronation Global Emerging Markets Flexible

While the delivery of investment excellence remains key, we continue to invest in technology and infrastructure to strengthen our client service experience and improve client satisfaction levels in the years to come. Some of the initiatives completed during the past year include:

▶ Adopting a new administration model

We moved from separate administrators for South African and offshore funds to a single provider that has consolidated the administration of our local and global assets.

▶ Migration of client administration and transfer agency services to a black-owned entity

We supported the creation of Intembeko Investment Administrators (IntIA), which provides dedicated client administration and transfer agency services.

▶ Insourcing our client reporting and correspondence

All our correspondence via email, post and SMS is now produced and managed in-house. We believe that taking total ownership and control of our client correspondence will enable us to deliver better service and build stronger client relationships.

▶ Ongoing client security enhancements

We continue to invest in the security and protection of all client data. Over the year, we introduced a number of additional controls, including a SIM swap check that will temporarily block user access to our secure website should a phone number recently have undergone a SIM swap.

▶ Introducing performance summary reports

These reports detail investors' personalised return across their various Coronation investments (using the Internal Rate of Return calculation methodology) and can be downloaded from our secure website.

Encouraging a culture of saving

We continued to enhance our tax-free investment (TFI) offering by extending the range of funds that are eligible as underlying holdings, both directly from Coronation and via all the major fund platforms. The additional fund options include Coronation Global Opportunities Equity, Coronation Balanced Plus, Coronation Capital Plus and Coronation Balanced Defensive.

With tax-free investments now being transferable between providers, it makes sense for investors to consider moving this investment to a unit trust-based TFI. Unit trust-based TFIs give investors access to growth assets and if they remain invested for the long term, these products offer greater potential upside than those of deposit-linked TFIs held with a bank.

To make it easier for new investors to start their journey of building a balance sheet, as part of Coronation's 25th anniversary we introduced a new investment channel with no minimum investment amount and a 5-minute mobile sign-up process. For more information visit www.becauseitsyourmoney.com.

Looking ahead

Coronation is one of the country's leading managers of long-term assets in the collective investment schemes industry, with retail assets totalling R241 billion (September 2017: R238 billion).

We reiterate that our sole focus remains the delivery of superior, risk-appropriate, long-term outcomes for clients. The combination of our philosophy, process and people have delivered an exceptional long-term, risk-adjusted track record across our unit trust funds. As echoed by our CIO on → page 5, we remain committed to our investment approach, which we continue to believe is the best means by which to add value on behalf of our clients.

We appreciate that it is not always easy for investors to stomach periods of disappointing short-term returns, but we are confident that our portfolios are well positioned to deliver competitive returns in the years ahead. We thank our clients who have entrusted us with their hard-earned savings. They can be assured that we will remain steadfast in our commitment to deliver investment excellence.

Report by the Chief Investment Officer

Over the past year, the South African equity market has been an extremely tough environment in which to generate positive returns.

While global and macroeconomic conditions have taken their toll, our portfolios have also been affected by stock-specific factors. Some of these include unsubstantiated claims made by the Nigerian authorities against MTN, proposed legislative changes to nicotine content and other issues affecting British American Tobacco, and the corporate governance scandal that engulfed Steinhoff. As a consequence of these factors, our short-term performance has been negatively impacted.

While we are not pleased with this outcome, the current short-term underperformance is not unusual. As long-term investors in a cyclical environment over 25 years, we have experienced downturns before. Our experience has taught us that it rarely makes sense to react to short-term market events or news flow and to rather remain focused on the long-term earnings potential of a particular investment.

Committed to a tried-and-tested philosophy and approach

Our sole purpose is to deliver superior long-term returns for our clients. The combination of our investment philosophy and process, together with our people, have delivered an exceptional track record over the past quarter of a century.

Our investment philosophy is informed by independent, unbiased proprietary research which we use to build diversified portfolios that can absorb unanticipated shocks. As such, we ensure that each portfolio holds appropriate levels of exposure to each risk factor.

We believe that the depth and quality of our research is a key differentiator. Instead of having sector specialists, we encourage a generalist approach within our investment team, whereby analysts rotate the stocks in their coverage list. Applying the same philosophy across South Africa, global developed, global emerging and frontier markets also provide additional perspective and insight, making us less prone to biases caused by a myopic focus on one geography only.

We follow a valuation-driven approach. We will buy shares in undervalued companies that trade at a discount to our fair value, providing that the balance sheet is sound and company boards and management are cognisant of shareholder interests. When we value a business, we are interested in long-term earnings power and seek to gain an understanding of what the business will earn through-the-cycle, rather than this year or next year.

All analysts are required to perform scenario analyses to indicate the impact of different outcomes of key variables in their valuations. We are not momentum investors and do not attempt to time the catalysts that will unlock or destroy value; rather, we take disciplined action around price movements relative to our assessment of the long-term value of the underlying business.

Our focus on valuation may lead to the implementation of views before the peak or trough of the cycle. Historical examples include increasing exposure to interest-rate sensitive shares in 2006, while monetary policy was still hawkish; materially reducing commodity exposure during 2007, while the commodity bull market continued until mid-2008; and moving to full equity weightings in the final quarter of 2008 in response to the price declines caused by the global financial crisis. In all three instances, our portfolio positioning caused short-term underperformance but added meaningful value over the full cycle. We do not believe that the experience over the past 12 months is different to these historical episodes, and exposures to the shares highlighted earlier have not led to any of our funds exceeding their risk budgets.

That said, we are always looking to further optimise our process, and we constantly test the assumptions behind our investment views. Where facts change, or new facts emerge, we will shift our investment positioning insofar as the new information impacts long-term valuation.

Given the lessons we have learned from events at Steinhoff, as well as other companies that we avoided (such as the Resilient Group and EOH), we are putting even more emphasis on ensuring that the agents who represent shareholders are held accountable. We continue to place emphasis on the quality of directors and the level of independence of the boards of the companies in which we are invested. We are also placing auditors under greater scrutiny, and we support the introduction of mandatory audit firm rotation. We now actively vote against the re-appointment of any auditor with a tenure of more than 10 years. The aim is to re-establish the link between auditors and shareholders, as well as to serve as a reminder that auditors do not report to company management.

While we have always taken environmental, social and governance (ESG) responsibilities seriously, we are now putting greater effort into formally reporting on our ESG activities. We think carefully about how investee companies consider these factors in their strategic and operational plans, as this will inform the long-term sustainability of a company. Additionally, we continue to deepen our engagements with external parties like suppliers, customers, competitors and regulators to verify management information. We will publish our first Stewardship Report early in 2019.

Portfolio positioning

The recent de-rating in the domestic market presents some attractive buying opportunities, with the gap between market prices and our assessment of fair value at the highest levels we have seen in the last seven years. We are adding to our overall South African equity exposure as we think this offers compelling value. We continue to have a bias towards high-quality, more defensive South African businesses (such as food retailers Pick n Pay and Spar, and hospital groups Netcare and Life Healthcare), the banks, and dual-listed multi-national companies, and have added to our positions in Anglo American, Nedbank, Standard Bank and Shoprite.

We believe valuations of rand-hedge stocks are very attractive and remain invested in stocks such as Anheuser-Busch Inbev, British American Tobacco, Naspers, Mondi and Quilter. We have meaningful exposure to resources through Anglo American, Northam Platinum and Exxaro. In property, we managed to avoid exposure to the Resilient Group and we are finding some attractive opportunities in some of the large, liquid companies such as Redefine. Despite a challenging year for the counter, we continue to hold Intu, the owner of a prime UK shopping centre portfolio.

We have also increased our investment in South African bonds from a very underweight level as real yields approached 4%; South Africa is one of the few regions offering such compelling real yields.

We continued to reduce exposure to an expensive US equity market in favour of the rest of the world, where valuations are more reasonable, especially in the emerging markets universe. We have not yet made the move to buy into developed-market debt markets, although with US yields at 3.2% they are closer to the point at which we would start buying.

Long-term performance

The long-term performance across our entire fund range remains excellent. This includes the full suite of multi-asset, local equity, fixed income, and emerging market equity funds. While our recent performance has been disappointing, we remain resolutely committed to deliver top performance for our clients over the long term.

For example, both the Top 20 and Equity funds mirrored the market's difficult 12 months to end-September, declining -3.8% and -2.1% respectively. But over 15 years, the Top 20 Fund delivered an annualised return of 18.4% and the Equity Fund return of 17.2% delivered over the same period. The same applies to the Balanced Plus Fund, which delivered a 2.0% return over the 12 months to end-September and the Market Plus Fund, which declined -2.0% over the same period. But Balanced Plus produced an annualised 14.9% return over 20 years and Market Plus, an annualised return of 15.8% over 15 years.

Outlook

In spite of the poor local environment that includes muted GDP growth, land reform, a deeply divided ruling party and a volatile pre-election landscape, we are more positive about the outlook for the major South African asset classes. While the outlook for global asset classes is more mixed, we continue to find attractive opportunities to deploy portfolio capital.

We remain optimistic as current valuation levels are consistent with higher expected future returns than experienced during the review period. The only answer to investing successfully is time. Patience is key.

Report of the trustee

We, Standard Chartered Bank, Johannesburg Branch, in our capacity as trustee of the Coronation Unit Trust Scheme (the Scheme), have prepared a report in terms of section 70(1)(f) of the Collective Investment Schemes Control Act, No. 45 of 2002, as amended (the Act), for the period 1 October 2016 up to and including 30 September 2017 (the Report). The Report is available from us and/or Coronation Management Company (RF) (Pty) Ltd (the Manager).

This letter is an abridged version of the Report.

Having fulfilled our duties as required by the Act, we confirm that the Manager of the Scheme has in general administered the Scheme:

- (i) within the limitations on the investment and borrowing powers of the Manager imposed by the Act; and
- (ii) in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the trust deeds.

We do, however, wish to bring to your attention the following instances of where the Manager has not administered the Scheme in accordance with the said limitations and provisions:

Some errors and timing differences resulted in contraventions of some of the limitations referred to in (i) and (ii) above. These contraventions were in our view not material and where appropriate the portfolios were compensated by the Manager for any loss (if any) that may have been suffered by the portfolios as a result on these contraventions.

Should any investor require a copy of the Report, kindly contact the Manager.
